

Beating Heart Beneath the Surface

Mihaela Baicu

From the holes beneath the Earth
Comes the icy waterfalls,
Digging, whispering and mourning,
Showing people there's no turning...

Dark as night the entrance stands,
As you step, two ghostly hands
Slender, windy and tempting
Drag you in, as feet are entering.

Stepping in, your world collides,
A new Universe arise
Out of darkness, kissed by light
New formations come to life.

In a row, between your peers,
You emerge from rocks and rivers.
Your heart fastness, your eyes blink
And once more of life you think.

There's no fear, time flies away,
Your soul feels the need to stay.
And you find down deep in you
That beneath hearts do beat, too.
